Cat

Cats are the favorite pets of many people all over the world. Cats are graceful and clever creatures who enjoy doing things for themselves. They can also be playful and curious. Tens of millions of cats are kept as pets worldwide.

Some experts think that cats were first tamed about five thousand years ago. They probably came from African wildcats. Early people, such as the ancient Egyptians, liked them because they killed mice, rats, and snakes. In time, the Egyptians thought cats were holy and magical. Tame cats spread

COMPUTER BASICS

Computer Basics

You can use a computer to write documents, listen to songs, and watch movies. Computers also can serve as gateways to the Internet—the vast system of interconnected computers around the world, and all the information they collectively contain.

Learning to use a computer is not that hard. This page explains some of the basic terms and ideas of using a computer.

Computer hardware

Hardware refers to all the parts of a computer that you can physically touch—the screen or monitor, the keyboard, the mouse, the DVD player, and all the circuits and other pieces of metal, plastic, and silicon inside the machine's casing.

Computer hardware comes in many different forms. Desktop computers are designed to stay in one place, plugged into a wall socket. They typically have large monitors and a mouse. Laptops are smaller machines that include a keyboard and screen in a single unit that opens and closes like a book. They have rechargeable batteries and so do not need to constantly be plugged into a wall. Some cell phones basically function like small computers. They have screens and keyboards and can connect to the Internet.

Key terms for computer basics:

- Hardware refers to the parts of a computer that you can physically touch.
- Software refers to programs and other digital files, the "mind" to hardware's "body."
- Operating system is the software program that controls all the others.
- Cursor is the little arrow you move around with your mouse.
- Hard drive is a piece of hardware that contains information on your computer.

Truncation and Wildcard Characters

—You can use wildcards to view all words that begin with the same stem. For example, a search for char will return hits on words like Charles, Charley, Charlie, Charlene, or Charlotte.

You can search alternate spellings with the asterisk (*), which represents 0 to 5 unknown characters.

A query for Grif*n will search for Griffin and Griffen, and Griffan among others.

The use of wildcards is restricted to keywords and names and you must specify the first three letters.

?—If you want to search for names that differ only by one letter use the question mark (?) wildcard. A search for Ta?lor will return both Taylor and Tailor.

Tips to improve search results.

Narrow results to a specific record type.
