About the Programs

The Emporia State University Master of Library Science (MLS) is a 36-credit-hour graduate degree program that prepares students for professional work in public, academic, school, and special libraries as well as in corporate, private, and government information services. Join a cohort of students who study and learn together through six semesters in two years to earn their MLS degree. The curriculum comprises theory and practical application courses about how information is created, recorded, acquired, organized, disseminated, diffused, utilized, preserved, and destroyed. You will develop an understanding of the role of social interaction in information-seeking behavior and the importance of a professional philosophy and service ethic.

School Media Licensure provides existing teachers and librarians the additional training and knowledge to better serve their students with specialized courses focusing on teaching information literacy, children and young adult programming, and media collection and management.
